

Jews and their Neighbours in Eastern Europe

A History of Endless Conflict?

A One-Day Conference of the Institute for Polish–Jewish Studies in association with the Polish Cultural Institute and the Institute of Jewish Studies, University College London

Thursday 15 December 2011, 9.30 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the Hallam Conference Centre, 44 Hallam Street, London W1W 6JJ and the Polish Embassy, 47 Portland Place, London W1B 1JH

Relations between Jews and their neighbours in Eastern Europe have long been perceived as existing in a permanent state of conflict. Focusing on commonalities rather than differences enables contributors to this conference to counter that image and also to highlight moments and modes of reciprocal influence and exchange, making a valuable contribution to the discussion of inter-group relations as well as to Polish Jewish history.

The conference marks the launch of

POLIN VOLUME 24

Jews and their Neighbours in Eastern Europe

A History of Endless Conflict?

Wednesday, 14 December 2011

Film Screening

8pm, New London Synagogue, 33 Abbey Road, NW8 0YA

Preceding evening event, in cooperation of the Polish Cultural Institute, London, and Spiro Ark:

Paul Schreyer from Drohobycz (Poland, 45 min, 2010)

A film by Marcin Giżycki and Małgorzata Sady documenting the reminiscences of Paul Schreyer, a musician born in 1922 and living in Drohobycz. Schreyer, a student of Bruno Schulz, the writer, painter and graphic artist, still performs, playing the violin and singing pre-war Polish and Jewish songs. His extraordinary life story told in a beautiful and moving way is accompanied by archival material and told in the context of his home town. Footage of live performances of Schreyer constitutes a significant element of the film.

The film will be introduced by Mr. Schreyer himself, who will give a concert at the conclusion of the conference, Thursday, 15 December, 2011, at the Embassy of the Republic of Poland.

The event is free of charge. For further details and registration, please contact the Spiro Ark. The telephone number is: 020 7723 9991. Email: education@spiroark.org

Notes on Speakers

Israel Bartal studied at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem and at Harvard University and received his Ph.D. from the Hebrew University. He has been a visiting Professor at Harvard, McGill, University of Pennsylvania, Rutgers, and Moscow State University (MGU). He served as the Dean of the Faculty of Humanities at the Hebrew University between 2006 and 2010 and is the chair of the Historical Society of Israel. Among his publications are Poles and Jews: a Failed Brotherhood (with Magdalena Opalski, Hanover, NH, 1992); co-editor (with Antony Polonsky) of Polin, Volume 12 (1999), which focuses on the Jews in Galicia, 1772–1914 and The Jews of Eastern Europe, 1772–1881 (Philadelphia, 2005), which has also appeared in Hebrew, Russian and German.

François Guesnet is Sidney and Elizabeth Corob Reader in Modern Jewish History in the Department of Hebrew and Jewish Studies at University College London. He specializes in the early modern and nineteenth century history of Polish Jews. His publications include Polnische Juden im 19. Jahrhundert: Lebensbedingungen, Rechtsnormen und Organisation im Wandel (Cologne, 1998) and numerous contributions and articles. Most recently, he edited an anthology of non-fictional Polish writings about the Jews of Poland, Der Fremde als Nachbar. Polnische Positionen zur jüdischen Präsenz in Polen. Texte seit 1800 (Frankfurt am Main, 2009), and a collection of German language texts by a nineteenth century Jewish merchant from Włocławek, Louis Meyer: Hinterlassene deutsche Schriften eines polnischen Juden (Hildesheim, 2010).

Eva Hoffman is a writer and academic. She was born in Kraków after her Jewish parents survived the Holocaust by hiding in Ukraine. When she was an adolescent, her family immigrated to Canada in 1959. After graduating from high school she received a scholarship and studied at Rice University, Texas (English literature), the Yale School of Music, and Harvard University, where she received a Ph.D. in literature. In 2008, she was awarded an honorary DLitt by the University of Warwick. Among her books are Lost in Translation: Life in a New Language (1989); Exit into History: A Journey Through the New Eastern Europe (1993); Shtetl: The Life and Death of a Small Town and the World of Polish Jews (1997); The Secret (2002); After Such Knowledge: Memory, History and the Legacy of the Holocaust (2004); Time (2009) and Appassionata (2011)

Antony Polonsky is Albert Abramson Professor of Holocaust Studies at Brandeis University and the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum. Until 1991, he was Professor of International History at the London School of Economics and Political Science. He is chair of the editorial board of Polin: Studies in Polish Jewry, author of Politics in Independent Poland (1972), The Little Dictators (1975), The Great Powers and the Polish Question (1976) co-author of A History of Modern Poland (1980) and The Beginnings of Communist Rule in Poland (1981) and co-editor of Contemporary Jewish writing in Poland: an anthology (2001) and The neighbors respond: the controversy over the Jedwabne Massacre in Poland (2004). His most recent work is The Jews in Poland and Russia volume 1, 1350 to 1881; volume 2 1881 to 1914; volume 3 1914 to 2008 (Oxford, 2010, 2011).

Jerzy Tomaszewski is Professor emeritus at the University of Warsaw and a former head of the Mordecai Anieliewicz Center for the Study of the History and Culture of Polish Jews at the University of Warsaw. He is a member of the Council and Board of the Jewish Historical Institute in Warsaw. Among his publications are Z dziejów Polesia 1921–1939: Zarys stosunków społeczno-ekonomicznych (Warsaw, 1963); Rzeczpospolita wielu narodów (Warsaw, 1985) and Ojczyzna nie tylko Polaków: Mniejszości narodowe w Polsce w latach 1918–1939 (Warsaw, 1985).

Scott Ury is a Senior Lecturer in Tel Aviv University's Department of Jewish History where he also serves as acting director of the Stephen Roth Center for the Study of Antisemitism and Racism. His work has appeared in Jewish Social Studies, Polin, the YIVO Encyclopedia of Jews in Eastern Europe and other academic forums in English, French, German, Hebrew and Polish. In addition to the present volume, he has also co-edited a special edition of the European Review of History on Cosmopolitanism, Nationalism and the Jews of East Central Europe. His monograph, Red Banner, Blue Star: The Revolution of 1905 and the Transformation of Warsaw Jewry is forthcoming with Stanford University Press.
